MILVUS KLEINBERG MUSIC LICENSING

Background One year ago the EP “Living My Way” was released. It is a pretty good music. But I run a small label with small promotional opportunities, being unable to sell the music as much as I want. Moreover, our live band is incomplete, acting no longer. Yet, my concern is not much with my band, but with my songs, my works.

New songs in your repertoire Now, I am presenting my music to your kind attention. For listening just click on the artwork on the www.maesstr.com homepage. You can choose any song you might like for your own performance (not to be confused with ‘covering’ songs). In other words, if you like, you are welcome to adopt my works into your repertoire.

Licensing For any kind of music copying, distribution or public performance (e. g. CD, digital distribution, streaming, public live performance) getting a license is obligatory. The song title (and its ISWC, if applicable), the composer and the lyricist (and their IPI, if applicable) have to be correctly put in metadata of the record (and related prints like booklets) and reported to a copyright collecting society (copyright collective) to obtain the license.
